HW04 Paper Analysis

Bridger Jones

October 1, 2021

Since I am still learning about how all of this stuff works I don't know if I can make an accurate statement as to whether I trust their results by reading the results alone. I did a bit of research on the authors and they did win those competitions so I would say that I trust their results are accurate enough to win that competition. Do I believe or trust that those results would hold up to the hardware and technology we have in 2021, probably not. I think what they did at that time was significant and you can confirm this by looking at some of the companies founded by these authors. However, I believe that we could significantly do better than those results today with the tools that are available to us.